ABRIDGED PROSPECTUS.

THE capabilities of America to supply Cotton will be more or less diminished for years to come. India alone is adequate to supply the deficiency. Her growth of Cotton is considerably more than that of America, and her export has been steadily increasing at an average rate of 10 per cent per annum. The operations of this Company are all that is needed to enable her to compete successfully in the future, even with a return to low prices.

While subserving great national interests as regards both England and India, a wide field is opened to this Company for a safe and highly remunerative employment of capital.

The estimates of profits, showing a return of £[illegible] on a capital of £250,000, have been examined and approved by Indian merchants of [illegible]

OUR new Governor was inaugurated yesterday. Save the dark cloud lowering in the North-West, every thing augurs well for his administration as one of peace, prosperity, and progress. The state of things in Affghanistan looks very ugly. The rumour of the fall of Furrah is confirmed by the latest intelligence from Cabool. The old Ameer has placed himself at the head of his troops, resolved "either to take Herat from Sooltan Ahmed Jan, or to die under its walls." He ordered his troops to be ready about the 10th current, when, he said, he would command them personally and march to Khandahar. Sooltan Ahmed Jan's troops at and near Furrah "are said to be about fourteen thousand five hundred, and the Persian troops near Herat are reported to be innumerable." Sirdar Mahomed Ameen Khan, of Khandahar, had pushed on to Gurrishk, where with eight thousand men he was waiting impatiently for reinforcements from Cabool and Khandahar, on the arrival of which he was to march on Furrah. All Affghanistan is up. At present we cannot see how we can avoid being embroiled with the Persians. We endorse the following remarks of the Hurkaru, in his issue of the 16th instant :—

> "For the third time within a comparatively short period, we are likely to have a war with Persia, which is again bent on the occupation of Herat. We shall owe the new campaign entirely to the weakness which preferred conciliation to conquest, and allowed the Persians to fancy that a contest with England is not a matter for apprehension. Because they are wretchedly weak we have always shrank from showing them that we are irresistibly strong. We have struck with the silken glove, and not with the mailed hand. It seemed so unworthy a matter to crush as well as conquer, that we halted where we should have advanced, and left the Persians to imagine that when we retired it was from necessity. It has now become requisite to remove that impression, and we earnestly hope that the next advance of the British into Persian territory will need no after memorials of brass or stone to render the recollection of it lasting in the minds of the population. We are bound to make them pay heavily for the hostility which they have invoked, were it only to afford a guarantee for future peace, such as no treaties can ensure. So long as Persia is in a presumed condition to brave the power of England, the Mussulmans of India will not cease to intrigue for the restoration of Mahomedan rule. From the same cause, the Russian name continues a watchword of fear or hope, and timid friends as well as credulous enemies, think that the day may come when the tide of invasion will roll downwards to the sea, and a race still stronger and fiercer may wrench the country from our grasp. We have scattered, during the last few years, many illusions, and must dissipate this one, the call to action being more imminent perhaps than the majority of us are aware of."

We regret that there is so much reason to believe that at the very beginning of his administration His Excellency Sir Bartle Frere will have to take part in the prosecution of a great war. If an expedition is to be sent into Persia from Bombay, it is most satisfactory that we know the management of it could not be in the hands of men more decided, prompt and energetic than Sir Bartle Frere, Sir William Mansfield, and Commodore Wellesley. If able men are raised up for great occasions, coming events of great moment to India may thus be casting their shadows before, when we have an Elgin and a Rose at the head of national affairs, and a Bartle Frere, a Mansfield and a Wellesley as their lieutenants. But for this lowering cloud in the North-West, Sir Bartle Frere could not have entered upon his high office under more favourable auspices. He has come, indeed, at the time he was most wanted, whether it be to prosecute a war or to promote the arts of peace. There is much in connection with the material and moral prosperity of this Presidency which awaits only a master-mind and a master-hand for its development. In the very successful administrator of Sattara and of Sind, in the President of the Council of the Governor General of India, we believe we have the master-mind and the master-hand which we need. Sir Bartle Frere will do all that man can do to develop the material resources of the Presidency, especially to promote the extension of its trade and commerce ; and will enter more heartily than any of his predecessors into the great work of extending the operations of the Educational Department. We congratulate His Excellency on the high elevation to which his tried abilities and past public services have raised him ; and we felicitate the people of Bombay on their good fortune in obtaining the right man to direct their public affairs.

LONDON CORRESPONDENCE.

LONDON, 3rd April 1862.

THE news from America increases in interest and importance, and continues the leading topic of discussion amongst us, in the face of much that is interesting even in our home affairs. The tide of fortune seems to have turned almost exclusively in favor of the Federal party, and victory after victory of one sort or another gained by their Generals have been heralded to us by every recent mail.

In Tennessee and North Carolina the Confederates have met with signal defeats, and at the very time their best General, Beauregard, on assuming the Command in Chief of the army of the Mississipi was telling his soldiers that their reverses so far from disheartening, should only nerve them to "new deeds of valour," intelligence was received of fresh disasters in the very districts subject to his command.

To these Federal successes there has been a striking exception in the Confederate naval victory at Newport News, which was as remarkable in its character, as it was unexpected. The Confederate iron-clad steam ship Merrimac (or Virginia as she is called in the Confederate official account of the engagement) steamed from Norfolk and at the mouth of the James river, attacked the Federal Frigates Cumberland and Congress, running down the former and blowing up the latter without receiving the slightest injury herself. The next day an engagement took place between the Merrimac and the Federal iron-plated steamer Monitor, which after some five hours fighting ended in the Merrimac retiring again to Norfolk, without, however, being in any way seriously injured. The fact of this being the first encounter between iron-plated ships has caused much excitement and discussion on the subject both in this country and America. In a debate in the House of Commons, the question was raised by Sir F. Smith, no mean authority on such subjects, who declared that in the face of such facts as the American fight proved, to proceed with our proposed stone fortifications would be utterly useless, as iron-clad ships might blockade a coast and steam past the most formidable land fortifications with entire impunity. Other members urged that the time for building wooden vessels has now gone by, and that no time should be lost in having all our wooden frigates cased with iron, and that the defence of our ports and arsenals will be most effectually carried out by floating batteries of these iron-cased gunboats.

Ministers are perplexed—they admit the importance of the facts of the American fight, but say, we knew as much before from the experiments made in this country, and that it would be unwise to adopt any hasty conclusion, and rush into further expense while so much is still in doubt. There will be another debate on the subject to-morrow on a motion of Mr. Osborne to suspend the fortifications that have been sanctioned, and in the meantime the war of opinion on this most important question ranges on all sides.

Though the Federal Army of the Potomac has advanced, nothing has come of the advance as yet. The Confederates' retreat from their position at Manassas is allowed to have been admirably made, it is said they are concentrated behind the Rappahannock, and are entrenching themselves for the defence of Richmond. The generalship of McClellan is now loudly questioned by the Federals, and we suspect his difficulties will only be beginning with his advance: to feed such an enormous army, in a country so hostile would tax the resources of a Wellington himself.

The political move of the President, Mr. Lincoln, in the Message he has sent to Congress on the subject of Slavery is perhaps more important than even the military successes that have attended the Federal cause. The importance of the move lies, however, more in the fact that it is the first time, that this terrible difficulty, which doubtless is the root of the whole matter, has been officially and publicly dealt with, than in any great hope that the scheme itself is of a practical or hopeful character. The proposal is in substance—gradual emancipation of the slaves by compensation grants from the Federal treasury. The scheme seems certainly more of a political than of a philanthropic character, and designed to detach the wavering Border and semi-slave states from the Southern Confederacy. Whether it will effect this object, and whether it be otherwise practicable, it would be rather premature at present to decide; but of the importance of the proposition in itself and the effect it is ultimately likely to have on the settlement of such a vexed question there cannot be much doubt.

An American citizen long and honorably known in this city for his hospitality and his charitable disposition, Mr. George Peabody, has astonished the world by an act of munificence unexampled by any private individual for the amount and manner of the gift. He has devoted the sum of £150,000 for the purpose of ameliorating the condition of "the poor and needy" of London, and for the promotion of their comfort and happiness. The fund is placed in the hands of five trustees. Mr. Adams the American Minister in London, Mr. Peabody's partner Mr. Morgan, his friend Mr. C. M. Lampson, Lord Stanley and Sir James Emerson Tenant. The number of Trustees is to be made up to nine, but never to exceed that number, and the United States Minister in London for the time being is always to be one of them. How Mr. Peabody's praiseworthy object is to be accomplished and carried out will be a matter of serious and anxious consideration with the Trustees, for there is nothing of a very definite character in Mr. Peabody's letter announcing his charitable intention, excepting the valuable provisos that neither party politics nor sectarianism in religion shall be permitted to interfere with the management of the Fund.

The grand debate on the revised Code, which with some expectants of office was much desired to be turned into a party fight, has after two nights elaborate discussion ended in a compromise. Ministers have surrendered on two of the points they have been most assailed, a surrender that was prudent to make in the face of so much unreasonable and unreasoning clamour, but which surrenders at the same time the only guarantee the country could have had that the sums so largely voted by Parliament for the education of the poor, mere wisely and effectively spent. The subject comes on again for final disposal soon after the Easter recess. The proceedings of Parliament in other respects have not been especially interesting. There are few questions before it of much importance and otherwise such discussions as have taken place have not been exciting.

An exception, however, must be made in favor of the grand "canine match" (as Punch calls it) which came off in the House of Lords between ex-Chancellor Chelmsford and the Lord Chancellor.

The contempt (to call it by no milder term) which Lord Westbury, on all occasions affording an opportunity, displays towards the amiable but feeble Tory ex-Chancellor has long been matter of notoriety, and Lord Chelmsford fancied he had an opportunity of paying back the Chancellor's sneers with interest, when taking up the case of the interests of the poor clerks of the Insolvency Court, who have been deprived of half their former salaries through a blunder in the New Bankruptcy Act. This blunder Lord Chelmsford coolly threw upon Lord Westbury as his sole act, and as having been done of sheer "malice aforethought"! This was certainly pretty well, but he caught a Tartar, and even though backed by Lord Derby, they were together no match for the Chancellor, in the raciest scolding match known in the House of Peers since the "high and palmy days" of Brougham!

The fine intellect of the Lord Chancellor was seen, however, to better advantage a few nights afterwards, when by the force and vigour of his reasoning he discomfited the united attacks of Lords Cranworth and Chelmsford on his Lunacy Reform Bill.

To-night the Chancellor of the Exchequer will expound our financial condition, but as it is pretty well known no changes will be proposed, the matter has not excited any great interest beforehand. We are all thankful to know that ever so eventful a year, the public revenue has proved so elastic, notwithstanding the depression of the trade, and the entire loss of the American portion of it almost, but for the Trent affair, the expenditure and income would almost have balanced, and that too in the face of the reduction of the Income Tax and the abolition of the Paper duty. As it is the deficiency will not amount to a million and a half and without being able to say how the Chancellor is to provide for this or whether there may be Exchequer balances to meet it. We are thankful to believe there is nothing to be put on at all events.

We are not yet down with scandal among the Lawyers. Mr. Kennedy, the hero of the "Swinfen Case," has just got a verdict in his favor by a jury for £20,000 against the lady, (elevated from the scullery to the drawing room) in whose behalf, he fought successfully the best lawyers in England, and secured in possession of the Swinfen Estates all too celebrated now in more ways than one—which Lord Chief Justice Cockburn says will not hold good in law, inasmuch as a barrister cannot recover his fees in a Court of Justice, and on the other hand a barrister cannot be permitted to claim remuneration for doing the work of an attorney! So there is a pretty mess of one sort or other! As to the other scandals raised in the course of the trial, let them be unmentionable here! Soldiers are in little better plight than the lawyers! The trial of Captain Robertson, of the 4th Dragoon Guards, has come to a close after exceeding in length the "Windham Case" itself, and the revelations therein made of the state of discipline of the regiment and the honour and truthfulness of the Officers from the Commandant downwards are of the most humiliating character. The sentence of the Court Martial has not yet been announced, no doubt the matter is undergoing careful examination at the Horse Guards, where, it is to be hoped, justice will be impartially administered all round. An enquiry is also going on "with closed doors" into the state of discipline in the Second Life Guards, regarding which rumours of an extraordinary character are afloat.

The International Exhibition, the opening of which is now close at hand froms one of the standard topics of conversation. The dilatoriness of the Home Exhibition has been made up for wonderfully within the last few days, and notwithstanding all that has been said to the contrary, we are likely to cut as good a figure as any competitors come from what quarter they may.

In the meantime, the building itself, and the roads near it, are a perfect chaos of carts and packages. Order, however, is rapidly being brought out of all this confusion, and in the course of other ten days the building will be a sight worth seeing. The programme of the opening ceremonial has been announced, and is laughed at in most quarters, but it is difficult to see. what otherwise it could have been in the absence of the Queen herself.

All kinds of Commercial speculations continue to hang fire. Trade is dull generally, and the state of the manufacturing districts causes much anxiety. Short time on a larger scale than has yet taken place is talked of, and unless a compromise is come to in American affairs soon, it is hard to say what will be the state of suffering in Lancashire and other manufacturing districts.

MONEY-MARKET & CITY INTELLIGENCE.

WEDNESDAY EVENING.—The English funds opened with a rather dull tone this morning, but their was subsequently an increase of confidence, and an advance of an eighth was well established. Consols for money were first quoted at yesterday's price, 93⅞ to ¾, and the final transactions were at 93¾ to ⅞. The next settling day is fixed for the 8th of May, and the quotation for that period was 93¾ to 94. Reduced and New Three per Cents. (the dividends on which will be paid to the public on Wednesday, the 9th) left off at 92½ to ¾; India Stock, 224 to 226; India Five per Cents., 108¼ to ⅜; Rupee paper, 102½ to 103½, and 108¼ to ½; India Bonds, 24s. to 28s., and Exchequer-bills, 17s. to 20s. premium.

There was a diminished demand for discount at the Bank to-day, and in the Stock Exchange the rate for advances was only 2 per cent.

In foreign securities there was no material alteration, except in Mexican, which in consequence of the announcement in the Mointeur that France and Spain have disapproved the convention lately agreed to by General Prim, declined to 34¾ to ⅞, or three-eights below the quotation of yesterday, Italian Five per Cents. also were an eighth lower, notwithstanding the report from Vienna that Russia, at the solicitation of France, is likely soon to recognize the kingdom of Italy. The last transactions were at 66⅛ to ¼. Spanish Certificates remain at 6¾ to 7. In Turkish Scrip the transactions were again numerous, and, although some sales were effected to-day in anticipation of the allotment, which is expected to be made on Saturday, the price was steady at 2¼ to 3 premium. The general transaction in the official list comprised Brazilian Four-and-a-Half per Cents., 93; Mexican, 35 34⅞ ¾ ⅞; Moorish Scrip, 6¼ ⅜; Peruvian Three per Cents, 82⅞ 83; Russian Five per Cents., 99⅝ ⅞; Three per Cents,, 62 61⅞; Spanish, 53¼ 53; Passive, 19¼; Certificates 6¾ 7; Turkish Six per Cents., old, 84½; new, 71½ ¾ ⅛ 71; Venezuala, 24½ ¼; and Italian Five per Cents., 66¼ ⅛.

The last price from Paris this evening was 70f. 5c., showing a recovery of nearly a quarter per cent.

The gold taken to the Bank to-day was 34,000*l.*, making a total of 247,000*l.* since the last return.

The Pera, with the mails for the East, sailing on the 4th inst., will take out in specie 9,178*l.* gold, 29,150*l.* silver for India; 2,625*l* gold and 64,000*l.* silver for China and the Straits.

The Giant's Causeway has arrived from Melbourne with 49,000*l.* in gold.

It is understood that orders are in course of transmission to all the dockyards throughout the United Kingdom to suspend any further operations upon wooden ships.

The letters to the unsuccessful applicants for the Turkish Loan were sent out this afternoon, but at too late an hour for the return of the deposits, which will accordingly commerce to-morrow morning.

The bare silver brought by the Mexican steamer has been disposed of for India at 61¼d., being ⅛d. advance upon the price obtained last week. This rise, which was hardly expected, is chiefly attributable to the smallness of the arrival and to a renewal of the Indian demand.

The Demerara Railway Company, in conformity with a colonial ordinance passed last August, have invited subscriptions for 115,000*l*, Perpetual 7 per Cent Preference Stock, which, it is stated, will suffice to finish the line, and to clear off the debenture debt and all other claims against the company. The line is already open for 15 miles, and only five miles are required to complete it. The traffic on the portion opened has steadily increased, and the gross receipts, reckoning them upon the 20 miles on the same scale only as for the 15 miles at present in operation, will amount to 29.725*l.* per annum, which, after paying 8,050*l.* for interest on the preference stock, would leave 73 per cent. for working expenses, and for dividend on the share capital of 135,100*l.*

The London Sufferance Wharf Company, whose premises are to be erected on the north bank of the Thames, in connexion with the Victoria Docks and all the principal railways, propose to meet the difficulty lately raised with regard to storeage of the quantities of well oil now in course of importation from America, and the trade in which promises rapidly to assume singular proportions. The danger of such an article being kept in the midst of the various docks of London has attracted general attention, and the Sufferance Wharf Company intend to erect a series of buildings, entirely apart from all other premises to be devoted exclusively to this purpose.

MR. LAING'S BUDGET.

(From the Englishman's Extraordinary, April 16.)

MR. LAING, in moving for leave to bring in a Bill to amend Act X of 1860, said he would take that opportunity of laying before the Council a full statement of the financial position, and the estimates for the coming year. The first point would be to state as shortly as possible the result of the Budget of 1861-62 a statement which would show how a deficit of £6,000,000 had been turned into financial equilibrium; a state of things which when he had first ventured to anticipate it, had been the occasion of general surprise here and of incredulity at home where faith was weak as to the accuracy of Indian financial statements. He was happy in coming before them with a statement of results which more than confirmed his hopeful anticipations. Notwithstanding that in the year now under consideration there had been a sum of £1,458,140 extra, over and above the estimates, spent in Public Works and in Opium advances, over April last, there was no deficit. This was a result so important, and in many quarters he believed so unexpected, that he must explain how it was proved by the facts of their position and their balances. The estimates had been revised with great care by the results of ten months of actual returns arrived at by a machinery which although not yet perfect, was so greatly improved as to give every assurance of reliable figures for his present purpose.

He need not however trouble them with mere words whilst they had before them the unerring test of the cash balances which stood thus:—

Cash balance of April 30th 1861	£14,608,121
Less, Mint certificates for bullion in deposit	930,000
Real balance of 1861	£13,678,121

These mint certificates for bullion deposited by merchants, did not now appear in the balances under consideration, and they had as their

Real cash balance on 31st March, 1862	17,690,000
Increase	4,012,000
Of which they owed to England	3,300,000
Leaving a net increase on the year of	£712,000

The estimates were therefore safe, being above half a million within the amount of the cash balances; and what did they show? They showed one salient fact at least, that the expenditure of the country had been very greatly retrenched in those departments in which the government had found it was open to revision.

That expenditure had been in 1860-1	£29,365,066
And in 1861-2	24,293,787
Actual saving in one year	£ 5,071,279

Upon examination it would be found that the principal saving had been in the Military Department, the cost of which had been

In 1859-60	£20,909,307
„ 1860-61	15,838,980
„ 1861-62	12,800,000

This great and most satisfactory reduction was the fruit of measures which had reduced the Native Armed Forces from 350,000 men down to 125,000; and the European Army from 90,000 in the year first named to 70,000 in the year now under consideration.

In the Naval Expenditure of 1861-2 as compared with that of 1860-1, there had been a further saving of £426,000; whilst the Civil retrenchments yielded the handsome amount of £1,500,000.

Proceeding then to compare the actual results of the financial year 1861-2, not with the actual results of 1860-1 but with the Budget estimates of last April, it would be found that their expenditure had increased by £1,714,370 over last April; of which amount £1,458,140 had gone to Public Works and Opium advances the reasons for increase in which he shortly explained.

Public Works had absorbed £1,000,000, more than had been proposed in the estimates of last April, that is to say £500,000 from Local Taxes handed over to them; £120,000 expenditure on Cotton roads and Railway feeders, and £380,000 of the proceeds of the one per cent Income Tax. Here then was the plain fact that the revenue of the year was better than calculated in April last by £1,616,492, and the pleasing result was the financial equilibrium to which he had before alluded.

And now for the consideration of their prospects in 1862-3. He would take it, as the simplest method, as it stood without any changes in Taxation, and the estimates in that way showed the

Revenue of 1861-2	£42,911,090
Revenue of 1862-3	43,796,200
Surplus	£885,110

Then the Opium cultivation taking it at an average of Rs. 1,200 per chest would produce for the crop of 1861-2	£36,463,309
Expenditure for cultivation of 1862-3	35,905,321
Showing a difference of	£557,788

He found that what he would call their voluntary expenditure upon the year would be better by £839,700; whilst the involuntary expenditure, interest on debt, home charges, cost of collection of revenue, &c., would be worse by £281,912; showing a net result in their favour on this head of about £557,788.

The Military expenditure would be again down some £600,000, bringing that item to £12,200,000 a reduction which resulted from the further decrease of the Native forces by the disbandment of the twelve Madras N. I. Regiments, and of eight battalions of Bengal Military Police; and by the bringing the European army down to its established strength. He exposed completely the assertions of the Secretary of State for India, as to the Military establishment of India not having been charged with the maintenance of extra troops; the European soldiery having been during the year, 5,000 men in excess of that establishment, at a charge of not less than £45 per head. He had no desire to re-open the discussion, but would let bygones be bygones. But he was none the less glad that the Secretary of State for India, would in future be so far strengthened in his position as to render impossible a repetition of that process so pleasant to English Chancellors and the reverse to Indian financiers, of transferring a few thousand men to the Indian establishment.

The Navy again yielded them a saving of £150,000.

Summing up then on the present basis of taxation, they had before them for 1862-63 a surplus of £1,428,623. Then came the important consideration of how they should dispose of this surplus.

First the government proposed to devote £140,452 more to educational purposes, making up the grant for the year to a round sum of £500,000

To Public Works he proposed to give up another £380,000 to Local Funds from the one per cent. of the Income Tax; and an Imperial assignment of £200,000, beyond last year's grant of £3,680,000, making in all £4,260,000 for Public Works.

This would leave them with an actual surplus of £903,810 in hand, and he then came to the question of how to apply this surplus. And as this was not a matter of arrangement for a single year merely, but a point from which they must survey the probabilities and necessities of future years they had before them a question demanding the fullest consideration of Indian financiers. Was the Opium revenue precarious? On general grounds he held that it was not more precarious than an English revenue, say from gin or tobacco. The question was a specific one of price and supply. Supposing the supply to be largely increased, they no longer needed such high prices to yield the same results in revenue. He would refer to returns he had prepared of the trade for the last ten years which showed—

Average of.	Chests.	Prices.	Paid by China.
		Rs.	£
First 5 years, 1852-7	71,083	885	6,100,000
Second 5 years, 1857-62	70,600	1,593	11,000,000

These figures spoke for themselves and proved incontestably a largely increasing demand. Now to keep up the revenue from this source it was only required that China should take from India say, 80,000 chests at Rs. 1000; or 100,000 chests at Rs. 800, or in other words to spend on Opium £8,000,000, where she was now paying £11,000,000. And he stated further his grounds for believing that even an extension of revenue was possible from that source.

But apart from Opium he found the general revenue very buoyant, in proof of which they needed only to glance at the increase of the revenue in ten years, during which it had risen from £29,210,000 in 1851-2 to £43,780,000 in 1861-2. Allowing for increased results from Opium, new taxes, and new territory, the real increase of revenue was £7,000,000 in ten years, of which no less than £4,500,000 was in the last five years. But the objection might be raised that it was unsafe to remit taxation because of the possibility that war might arise. Supposing such an unhappy exigency to occur what reserves had they then to fall back upon? They had in the first place £5,000,000 of extra cash balances to fall upon; they had £4,000,000 a year of surplus invested in Public Works; and to say nothing of the rising value of, their public securities, new taxes might be levied; some thing in the form often urged for India of a tax combining in some measure the character of Poll Tax with that of the License Tax; they could also raise the duties on Salt and Customs, and so secure an additional three or four millions.

He had then, established two points.

1st. That they had a surplus of £903,810.

2nd. That they might safely spend it.

And there remained the question, how to apply it. He would turn first to the Import Duties. It would cost them £450,000 to reduce the duties on piece goods to 5 per cent, and on yarns to 3½ per cent, and this he proposed to do, with immediate effect that is to say from the passing of the Act on Wednesday next. He would get rid of the anomaly of books, manufactured articles coming in free, whilst the raw material, paper, was taxed; and paper would come in free. The duty on Beer might be reduced to half its present amount, or say, two annas per gallon. Tobacco would pay ad valorem duty of 20 per cent, instead of the present almost prohibitory duty on the foreign growths; and Claret would come in at half the present rates, namely at Rs. 1 per gallon instead of Rs. 2 on declared values below Rs. 12 per gallon. The total cost of all these reduc ions so far, would be £475,000. He would not detain them with some minor remissions of no financial importance, such as the export duty on Coal and Iron of Indian origin, and one or two others.

There remained then to consider the question of the Income Tax. Something must be done, for the Act of last year would expire in August next. It had been proposed to cover it into a License Tax, and to make it local. But the great question was should it be considered permanent? That could not be, for the government were pledged to the country that it should be removed at the end of five years from its enactment, and whatever they did, it thought they must keep in view the necessity of keeping faith with the people in this respect. What he proposed to do, then, in this direction, would be to continue the Tax on the present assessments upon incomes over Rs. 500 per annum. The two per cent tax upon the lower incomes affected, he found, two-thirds of the payers, or say, 600,000 persons; it produced a gross amount of £350,000 and cost £100,000 to collect it, leaving a net revenue of £250,000 which the government proposed to forego; and the statement then would stand thus—

Surplus for 1862-3		£903,840
Less Customs	£475,000
Less Income Tax	250,000	725,000
Leaving actual Surplus		£178,810

Looking back then upon the whole statement, it might shortly be said that the financial year

1860—1 closed a long series of deficits with one of £6,000,000.
1861—2 saw that deficit extinguished, chiefly by reducing expenditure by £5,000,000.
1862—3 by further reductions and continued buoyancy in the revenue, found them with an actual surplus of £1,428,623.

Which surplus they would apply to;—

Public Works and Education	£524,813
Reduction of Import Duties	475,000
Remission of 2 per cent. Income Tax	250,000

And, finally, they closed the financial year 1861-2 with a cash balance of £17,690,000, and he anticipated the closing of 1862-3 with at least an equal balance in the public Treasury.

At the same time it would not do for them to be too confident, or to relax in that wise economy which more than anything had led to so satisfactory a result. They should also be thankful to the Almighty disposer of events for the blessings of peace and favorable weather which had been granted by Him, and show their gratitude by employing those blessings in encouraging every thing that might tend to civilisation and in building up the foundations of an Empire which should conduce to His honor and glory. It was indeed a happy omen that the late Viceroy had been able to close his career with such a measure as the repeal of the License Tax, and in like manner it was a happy omen that His Excellency the present Viceroy had been able to inaugurate his career by remitting the Income Tax to two-thirds of the taxpayers, and reducing the duties on Imports. He had concluded his statement in the preceding year by expressing a hope that India would eventually become the brightest jewel in the British Crown, and he would close the present statement by repeating a still stronger expression of the same hope with an inward feeling of its speedy realisation.

LOCAL.

PROCLAMATION.

GENERAL DEPARTMENT.

"Whereas His Excellency the Honorable SIR HENRY BARTLE EDWARD FRERE, K.C.B., hath been appointed by HER MAJESTY to the Office of GOVERNOR OF BOMBAY and its Dependencies, it is hereby proclaimed that His Excellency the Honorable Sir HENRY BARTLE EDWARD FRERE, K.C.B., has, on the date hereof, assumed charge of the Government of Bombay and its Dependencies, and taken the Oaths and his Seat under the usual salute from the Garrison; and all persons are required to obey His Excellency the said Honorable Sir HENRY BARTLE EDWARD FRERE, K.C.B. as Governor and President in Council accordingly.

"Published by order of H. E. the Governor in Council,

"A. D. ROBERTSON,
"Acting Chief Secretary to Government."

THE mails for Kurrachee and Seinde per steamer Governor Higginson, will be closed today, at 8 o'clock A. M.

THE steamer Lightning, which left our harbour yesterday, the 24th instant, for China, had on board 1,062 Chests of Opium and 501 bales of Cotton.

A MEETING of the Marathi Dnyan Pursaruk Society, for the election of office-bearers for the next Session, will be held this day at half-past seven o'clock in the rooms of the Elphinstone Institution.

ON Sunday evening the 27th instant, at half-past four P. M., a grand funeral service for the late King of Portugal, D. Pedro V., will be held in the Church of N. S. de Sande at Cavel. Archdeacon A. M. Soares will preside on this occasion. Catholics are invited to attend.

WE beg to direct special attention to the intimation which we published in our extra of yesterday, and to the advertisement in our present issue, relative to the hour of departure of the P. and O. Company's Mail Steamer Behar. An error occurred in our yesterday's issue, which we thus hasten to correct. The Mail Steamer Behar will leave Bombay AT 5 O'CLOCK ON SUNDAY MORNING, and not at 8 o'clock in the evening.

TWO salutes of seventeen guns were fired yesterday morning from the Saluting Battery on the arrival at the Presidency from Dapooree of their Excellencies Sir G. Clerk and Sir Bartle Frere. Also a salute of seventeen guns was fired yesterday on the embarkation for England of His Excellency Sir George Clerk; and a like number of guns was also fired yesterday evening at six o'clock on the occasion of His Excellency Sir Bartle Frere taking the oaths and his seat as Governor and President in Council.

DEPARTURE OF SIR GEORGE CLERK.

Sir George Clerk embarked from the Apollo Bunder yesterday afternoon at a quarter past five o'clock. On his arrival at the Bunder, a salute of seventeen guns was fired from the saluting Battery. Sir George was accompanied by the new Governor Sir Bartle Frere, Hon. W. E. Frere, Captain Clerk, A. D. C. There were a good many gentlemen present to witness the departure of the late Governor, amongst whom we noticed Sir Mathew Sausse, Sir Joseph Arnould, Sir Jamsetjee Jejeebhoy, Hon'ble. J. D. Inverarity, Hon'ble. A. D. Robertson, Hon'ble. M. R. Westropp, Brigadier Liddell, C. B., Colonel Turner, Colonel Marriott, Colonel Barr, Mr. M. J. Shaw Stewart, Dr. Geraud, W. B. Peile, Hon'ble Rustomjee Jamsetjee, Hon'ble Juggonath Sunkersett, Major Coley, Major Curtis, Mr. Manockjee Cursetjee, Mr. W. Crawford, Mr. Hebbert, M. Tucker, Mr. Orr, Mr. Forjett, Mr. F. L. Brown, Mr. Bentley, Mr. Sangster, &c. &c.

Sir George Clerk stepped into the Governor's new barge accompanied by Sir Bartle Frere, Hon'ble W. E. Frere, Commodore Wellesley, Brigadier Liddell, Captain Clerk, Mr. Shaw Stewart and Lieutenant Burn. Other boats followed in which were Colonels Marriott, Turner, &c. As soon as the barge of his Excellency got under weigh the Ajdaha, Clive, Auckland and Dalhousie manned yards, and the three first named vessels fired a salute of seventeen guns each. H. H. the Imaum of Muscat's sloop of War Iskundershaw also fired a similar salute. When Sir George Clerk reached the Dalhousie he was received by Commander Hopkins and the whole of the officers of the ship. Sir Bartle Frere and the rest of the gentlemen who accompanied him left immediately after seeing Sir George on board, and returned on shore. There was no attempt at demonstration at any time, there was no guard of honor in attendance, there was merely the Governor's body guard of native cavalry consisting of some four or five men. The European Mounted Police were on the ground as well as some few of the European Constables.

When Sir Bartle Frere returned to the shore he drove off immediately to the Town Hall, where the Oaths were then administered to him in the Durbar room; and His Excellency took his seat at the Council. On taking his seat another salute of seventeen guns was fired from the Saluting Battery. The Governor was attended in the Town Hall by the Members of Council and most of the Secretaries of Government.

THE man who has been so long detained at Kurrachee, on suspicion of being the Nana, has at last been brought down to Bombay. We understand that he arrived here the other day on board the Johnston Castle, and was immediately sent up to Mr. Edginton's at Mazagon, where he is kept under the close surveilance of the mounted Police. We think that it is full time that this man should be released; surely there are plenty of people in India who would be found to prove whether he was the real Simon Pure or not. We have long looked upon the affair as a mare's nest.

"His Excellency the Governor-in-Council is pleased to recognise the appointment of Mr. G. W. Healey, as Vice-Consul at Bombay for the United States of America."

It will be remembered that Mr. Healey was appointed Vice-Consul by the Federal Government under the Buchanan administration. His appointment required to be confirmed by the Lincoln administration. This has caused some delay in the recognition of the appointment by Her Majesty's Government. Mr. Healey is a gentleman of high birth, of University honors, and of the best mercantile connections. The American Government could not have made a better choice, nor Her Majesty's Government have recognised a fitter man, for the Vice-Consulate in this important port. The American Consul-General for India is located at Calcutta; but we presume that Bombay will ere long be the seat of the General Consulate. In Mr. Healey we have a gentleman in every way qualified for the important office.

WE understand that a subscription fund is being now raised among the students and ex-students of the Elphinstone Institution for the purpose of presenting a suitable testimonial to Dr. Harkness, Principal of the Elphinstone College, on his retirement from office. The sum hitherto subscribed amounts to Rs. 3,800. A meeting will be called, as soon as the circulation of the subscription list is completed, to consider the form of the testimonial. Some of the subscribers propose presenting Dr. Harkness with a purse and placing his bust in the Framjee Cowasjee Institute; it is also proposed to give each subscriber a photographic portrait of the worthy Principal.

WE notice a slight improvement in the health of the Town. Cholera and fever still continue to be the prevailing epidemics. The mortuary returns of the past week shew the total number of deaths to be 281 against 307 of the week preceding. The following is a classified table of the casualties:—

HABEAS CORPUS.

In Re Phillip Rivington.

Mr. Angley, instructed by Messrs. Acland and Prentis, moved for a writ of Habeas Corpus directed to the Jailer of the County Jail, to bring up the body of Philip Rivington, a prisoner in the County Jail, for the purpose of his being admitted to bail. The application was based on the affidavits of Mr. Rivington, Mr. G. Foggo, and Mr. Acland.

Mr. Rivington in his affidavit stated that he is at present a prisoner in the Bombay Jail, that he is twenty-one years of age, that he is not guilty of the crime for which he has been committed to stand his trial at the next Criminal Sessions. That he received the carpet bag containing the despatch-box referred to in the depositions taken by F. L. Brown, Esq. the Committing Magistrate, on the 31st day of March last, from a person who brought, or from a person who had a few days before told him, that he would send him a parcel which he wished him to take charge of during his absence from Bombay, which would be of about a month's duration. That he was ignorant of the contents of the carpet bag, until the 4th instant, when he unlocked the padlock with which it was fastened, with one of his own keys and then discovered that it contained the despatch-box belonging to the prosecutor and which he had previously told him that he had lost. He knew it because he had previously seen the prosecutor using it at the Hotel. That he was much alarmed on making the discovery of the contents of the bag, fearing that if it were found in his posession he would be suspected of having stolen it. On the fifth instant he endeavored to discover the man from whom he had received it, but did not succeed. Mr. Willis, the gentleman with whom he was living at Colaba, was a friend of the prosecutor's and would, he thought, recognise the articles which he found in the box if he produced them and on the 6th instant he produced the watch referred to in the depositions in his presence, intending if he recognised it to tell him how he had become possessed of it and to take his advice as to what he should do under the circumstances. That he did not bring the carpet-bag from the Adelphi Hotel as stated by the witness Govind Ithoo, and until he received the bag in question in the manner before mentioned, he had not a carpet bag in his possession since his arrival in Bombay. That he was living at the Adelphi Hotel up to the 13th of March last, when he went to reside with Mr. Willis; he did not, however, remove all his effects from the Hotel at the time, nor for some days afterwards, but from time to time up to within two or three days of the 29th March, he took away things in the dog-cart which he had hired from the proprietor of the Hotel. That he was advised by his Solicitor and believed that it might prejudice his defence to state more fully than he had done in this his affidavit the circumstances under which the carpet-bag and despatch-box came into his possession, and the circumstances upon which he intends to rely for his defence. That if this Honorable Court should be pleased to admit him to bail he had no intention of leaving Bombay, but on the contrary he is desirous of standing his trial, for the purpose of endeavoring to clear his character from a charge, which if not disproved, must ruin his prospects for life. That previously to his arrival in Bombay, he made three voyages as Midshipman on board the ship Anglesey from England to Australia and back, and on the termination of the said voyages respectively, he received the certificates of character and discharge produced and shown to him at the time of swearing this his affidavit. On the termination of the last of the voyages he received from the commander of the vessel the certificates produced and shewn at the time of his swearing to this affidavit. That on the 24th of April 1861 he sailed from England for Hongkong in the ship Westminster, and after staying some time at Kongkong, finding that he could not obtain employment he had been led to expect he could have obtained, he determined on returning to England, and accordingly came to Bombay on his way there in the ship Westminster, and arrived here about 13th December last. That he was advised by his friends in Bombay not to return home, as he would most likely find employment here which would suit him; and he was actually offered a situation as an assistant in a business in Dharwar, where he had intended to go if he had not been arrested on the present charge. That when he arrived in Bombay he had about twenty pounds with him and had since received from Messrs Forbes & Co. the equivalent of £200 sterling against bills drawn by him on his father and brother. That he is possessed of about £800 three per cent. Consols, which will be reduced by the amount of the bills for £200 which he has drawn. That there were no Bank notes in the said despatch-box when he opened it; and he thinks that the prosecutor had made a mistake in stating that he told him, at first that he had given the money away, and afterwards that he had received no money. To the best of his recollection what he did say was that what was produced was all that he had received.

Mr. Foggo in his affidavit states,—that he is a merchant of Bombay and a partner in the firm of Messrs. Forbes and Co. That he is well acquainted with the prisoner Phillip Rivington, who is the son of the well known publisher of that name in London, and that his family are highly respectable. That he knew the said P. Rivington when a boy at school, since which time until he came to Bombay in December last, he had not seen him, but that he was previously well acquainted with his family and never knew anything to his disadvantage. That after his arrival in Bombay he was frequently at his house; and that he had cashed bills for him which he drew on his father and brother in England to the amount of £200. One of the said bills for £50 had been duly honored and sufficient time had not elapsed since the forwarding of the others to England to admit of his receiving advices respecting them, but that he had every reason to believe that they have been, or will be, duly honored. Judging from his knowledge of the prisoner in England and from his intercourse with him since his arrival in Bombay, deponent has always believed him to be upright, honest and respectable. That Henry Forman of Colaba and deponent are respectively willing to become bail for the appearance of the said Phillip Rivington at the next session of this Honorble Court, if he is released from custody, and to execute proper recognizances for that purpose. That the said H. Forman and deponent are both householders in Bombay. That he has seen the prisoner twice since he has been committed for trial, and has conversed with him freely on the subject of his position, and has no reason whatever to believe that if he is admitted to bail that he will attempt to leave Bombay for the purpose of avoiding is trial or for any other purpose.

The Court granted the writ, directing the Jailer to produce the body of Mr. Rivington next day (Friday) in the Chambers of the Chief Justice.

NEWS LETTER.

BARODA, 21*st April* 1862.—The presentation of the State Carriage by the B. B. and C. I. Railway Company to H. H. the Guicowar is the principal gossip amongst the community of this place.

Friday last at about 9 P. M. Colonels Wallace and French and Messrs. Lane and Bayly assembled at the Railway Station to receive. and show the carriage to H. H. previous to presentation which was appointed to take place on Saturday. H. H. expressed himself highly pleased with the carriage which is really an excellent "turn out" fitted up with mirrors and damask cushions, as has already been described in the Bombay papers, but the pleasure of possessing this handsome present, I think, was not by any means enhanced by the accident which occurred on the occasion. Mr. Lane having proposed that H. H. with the other gentlemen should have a drive of a mile or so in the carriage, the parties stepped in and a first and second class carriages and Break Van being attached, the train backed by an engine started from the Station. The pointsman (who by the bye was a hired labourer under the orders of the district Engineer) at the junction of the siding, under the impression that the state carriage, according to previous instruction, which was not countermanded, was being shunted into the shed directed the points accordingly—the driver, of course, ignorant of the movement of the pointsman backed the train with such force as to destroy the scotches and drive the Van, which was the first vehicle, beyond the extent of the rails in the shed, where it hung down the embankment raised for the shed. A few of the subordinate Railway officials and passengers who were in the 2nd class carriage next to the Van, received a severe shock and several bruises, and more serious damage would have been done had it not been for the promptitude and presence of mind of our energetic Station Master, Mr. Fenwick, who, although standing on the foot board of the state carriage, immediately showed the danger signal (red light) to the driver and thus prevented his further progress. The amusement of the evening was thus closed, I must say, rather unpleasantly for the Guicowar and the Railway Authorities present, and did not exactly accord with the prognostications of the Brahamin Astrologers of H. H. that the day was propitious for the [illegible] mony; the damage done to the [illegible] second class carriage may be [illegible] three or four hundred Rupees, f[illegible] injury done to the state carriage, [illegible] nels on one side near the bu[illegible] broken.

The above being a private cere[illegible] way authorities issued orders to [illegible] tify to the public that the present[illegible] carriage to his H. H. was appoin[illegible] on the day following (Saturday). [illegible] was run along the line from Now[illegible] but very few passengers arrived [illegible] standing the station was crowd[illegible] and were present on the platform, [illegible] and French, the Managing Agent, [illegible] ger, Deputy Engineer, Locomotive [illegible] and others. To return to the order [illegible] H. entered the residency a little after [illegible] himself, the Resident, Col. French, a[illegible] ed on elephants preceded by a small [illegible] marched to the Station under a[illegible]. Two Companies of H. M.'s 28th N. I., under Lieuts. Carpendale and Burnes received the Guicowar with honors at the station, which was magnificently decorated with green herbs and numerous flags, red, white and blue, the standard of the English, and red, white and green, the colours of the Company. After H. H. and the Saheb "loques" were seated on the platform, Mr. Lane drove up with the State carriage and received H. H. into it, but as a scalded cat is afraid of cold water, H. H. declined the pleasure of a drive in it in consequence of the accident of the previous night and it is said that he will not during his life time ever have a drive on the iron roads. H. H. was, however, pleased to allow his followers and other spec tators to enter his state carriage and two or three vehicles that were attached to it and to have a drive of a mile or so. On the return of the Excursion train "pan suparee" and rose water was distributed by Colonel French, when the meeting broke up and H. H. returned to the city.

By the way it is worth while telling you that the only son (5 years old) of the Rajah of Kolapoor and heir to the "Guddee" died of small-pox about a week ago in the Guicowar's Palace, where his mother, the Queen of Kolapoor, was on a visit to her uncle, the present Guicowar.

(From our own Correspondent.)

MHOW, 17*th April* 1862.—While to the north and south the malcontents of 1857-58 are being again engaged in fomenting disaffection, the noted rebel, who sent two guns to aid the Mhow mutineers, is at large, visiting Poona and other places, but under what circumstance, or pretext, is not known; he should, however, be carefully watched.

This city is a hotbed for budmashes, and several cases of highway robbery have of late been perpetrated between the Residency and Camp. When it happens that the robbers are taken, they are fined, and set at liberty—a fine opportunity for unprincipled Umlahs.—Deccan Herald, April 23.

POORUNDHUR, 21*st April* 1862.—In my last I gave you an epitome of the proceedings at this station. Since then, so far as regards the welfare of the soldiers, every thing remains as usual, and quietness and regularity are the order of the day. In other respects, improvements are going on rapidly, in the shape of public buildings, which will in no small measure contribute towards the welfare and accommodation of the convalescents, and for which we are indebted to the kindness and forethought of His Excellency Sir George Clerk. Indeed, during His Excellency's sojourn amongst us, nothing could exceed the kind consideration shewn to us, His Excellency supplying the hospital and barrack rooms with the latest home intelligence. "The public building," to which I have alluded, and which is already in the course of erection, is for the Library, the present building being a detached bungalow situated at some distance from the barracks, at the foot of the hill. In the monsoon it would be an impossibility to reach the present library without being drenched to the skin. The new building is within a few yards of the barracks, so that a weekly man can easily avail himself of the amusements at once within his reach. The church and Roman Catholic chapel are progressing rapidly; in fact Poorundhur, in a few years, will rival some of the crack sanitariums, and doubtless prove no small attraction to the elite of the Presidency. I must not omit to mention that a few days ago, His Excellency gave an entertainment to the convalescents in barracks, which took place on the Gymkhana or Cricket ground. The arrangements were under the supervision of our Commandant, Mr. Knight, who spared neither time nor attention to render the accommodations for the men as comfortable as possible. "Handling the willow" was the chief amusement of the day, and at 5 P. M. the men sat down to a substantial dinner. His Excellency and staff visited the men at about half-past five, when his presence was at once acknowledged by three hearty cheers. Singular to say (or rather not so very singular) no one thought of or was too shy to attempt anything in the way of returning thanks to Sir George Clerk, but the good feeling was there, and if the sincere wishes expressed by the men in the barracks, for a safe passage, and a speedy restoration to health, be of avail, His Excellency has them in good earnest. In conclusion, I must not omit letting you know that a club has been opened to enable us to keep up the supply of bats, balls, &c. &c. The following is a list of donations received:—

Digitized with financial assistance from the Government of Maharashtra on 18 June, 2017

shewing the matter in dispute and the grounds on which judgment has been recorded, shall be forwarded to the Secretary of State for India. The Government of India in pursuance of these instructions has, we hear, issued orders on the subject, directing the Legal Remembrancer to comply in all cases of appeal with the requisition of the Home Government; and in cases wherein the government is itself the appellant, he is further ordered to transmit as well a full statement of the particular grounds on which appeal is made from the judgment of the Court before which the case has been heard in India.—Id.

THE Government of India has directed that, in the case of all officers who are entrusted with the expenditure or distribution of public money, whether in their own persons, or as giving authority to others to do so, they shall, before vacating their appointments, be called upon to furnish security for such amounts as have been expended and not passed by the requisite authority; and that they shall furthermore be required to make declaration on honor, that no issue of funds has been authorised by them beyond the limit of the sanctioned grant for the purpose, or department, to which the money has been assigned. We confess our inability to comprehend the value of the declaration demanded. The returns of the treasury or bank, or the letter of credit, or assignment, will at once prove to what extent the funds at each disbursing officer's disposal have been availed of. No officer can exceed the amount passed to him by letter of credit or assignment; and those who have the power of writing one or making the other, have limits assigned to their responsibility. To our view, it appears as if this declaration were a revival of one of the absurd and obsolete forms in which the Military Board of old so much delighted. It can be of no use. It is an insult to the honest, upright, honorable man, and no protection against fraud in the case of the dishonest one.—Id.

SYLHET.

WE have further advices from Nowgong, and other parts of the disturbed districts of Assam, Cachar, and Sylhet; from these we gather that it is intended to quarter the 23rd and 28th regiments of Native Infantry in those provinces. Should the local government be enabled to provide them with accommodation at the various posts, it is proposed detachments of each regiment should be located during the ensuing rainy season. From Jynteah itself accounts are more favorable, and it is hoped that the difficulties which have in some measure been the cause of the present disturbances may be removed, and a settlement effected. But while this is the substance of the reports we have from Jynteah; from other parts of both Sylhet, and Cachar, we have far different news. In north Cachar, an attack has been made upon Bandah by a party of armed Cossyahs. They plundered and burnt the place, encouraged thereto no doubt by the absence of troops and the defenceless state of the country. Had endeavours been made to despatch a portion of the troops to north Cachar and Assam, via the Brahmapootra, this calamity might have been averted, as it is so utterly defenceless in the entire district that temptations are offered to attack on the part of the disaffected, which, to say the least, reflects very little credit upon the authorities. A similar occurrence, equally disgraceful to the authorities, has just eventuated in the Nuha Pergunnah, of the Nowgong District. A large party of Jynteahs and Cossyahs have made a decent into it, pillaging and destroying right and left. The people, relying on the government officers for protection, to which they have an undoubted claim had organized no measures of defence, they were taken at advantage, and were driven from village to village till their assailants, having possessed themselves of all they could carry away, and destroyed much of what they were obliged to abandon, returned unmolested to their hill retreats. It appears that there was not a soldier available to put in motion to intercept these depredators. With whom the blame rests it is difficult to say, but we trust shortly to hear something of General Showers, and of the measures taken by him to stay these frequent and serious depredations on the part of the turbulent hill tribes. From information we have received from other quarters we have confirmed what we have for so long stated, that the seeds of the rebellion now enacting in the Assam, Sylhet, and Cachar hills, were sown by parties foreign to these provinces. There have been for a long while agents at work throughout the hill-frontier districts of India inciting the people either to rise in opposition to their British rulers, or else, in those cases in which the tribes were independent, to assist their neighbours in casting off an obnoxious foreign yoke. That the government is aware of what has been enacting in these Hill States we know full well, and that any preparations which circumstances may require have been already made, we are quite willing to believe. Indeed we are not sure that the wisest course is not that of non-interference, except in cases in which British subjects peaceably disposed may possibly become the victims of their more turbulent neighbours. These incipient rebellions in unimportant States generally wear them[illegible]lves out before they reach a head at all likely to prove [illegible] but at the same time it becomes the duty of [illegible] be awake to every emergency, and be [illegible] meet any and every eventuality. In [illegible]stance the Bhotanese authorities have [illegible] are the instigators and prime movers in [illegible] disturbances in the North-east portion of British India. Not that they have as yet appeared openly in any of the past acts of the drama, but that they are now preparing to do so, we have every reason to believe to be the case. The first detachment of Bhotanese troops are already in motion towards the disaffected districts. Four hundred men fully armed and equipped having taken their departure for Buxa Dear in Assam, under the command of the Domtoong Po Sirdar. It is to be hoped that General Showers will be aware of their advent, and prepared to give them a reception of such a nature as to deter any similar parties from moving to the aid of British revolted subjects.—English[illegible] April 16.

NORTH-WEST PROVINCES.

[illegible] a city rich in traditions. The records of its past life are to be found partly in the page of history, and partly in those monuments of ancient splendour which have come down to us from a former age; and in the gardens of Shalimar; the tombs of Jehangir and Nourmahal; the Mosque of Aurungzebe and many other structures around or within the city, we have a bequest that is valuable, not merely from the cost and beauty of the buildings, but from the undying associations with which they are connected. All these structures however are hastening to decay. The river Ravee has swept away a large corner of the court surrounding the tomb of Jehangir. The tomb of Nourmahal was mutilated, we believe, in the time of the Sikhs, by tearing down most of the beautiful painted tiles with which it was covered. But it was reserved as a distinction for English visitors in the career of mutilation to chip away the corners and edges of the beautiful marble tomb itself, no doubt to preserve as a memento of their visit to this shrine. In the mosque of Aurungzebe many of the stones have fallen away and have not been replaced, and the vegetation now begining to take root in the interstices of the marble domes is by degrees displacing the stones, and before long much of the marble covering must fall off. So it is throughout. A little course repair has been executed here and there with stucco on such parts as were falling into the most complete dilapidation. But nothing in the way of real repair or restoration has been attempted, and if the present decay is suffered to go on these invaluable monuments will be lost altogether.—Lahore Chronicle, April 16.

THE following report has been submitted on the accounts of the Famine Fund by the Auditors appointed to investigate them by the Committee. It shews with what assiduity and care the intricate affairs of the Fund were managed by the late Secretary, Mr. Sloggett. The report embraces the whole period of his incumbency. The delay in the permanent settlement of the Fund is owing to the non-receipt of a reply from a Supreme Government, approving of the Trustees who were suggested by the Committee and by Government for the future administration of the Fund. Meanwhile, we learn with much satisfaction that the prospects of any further distress are now so remote owing to the blessing of abundant rain with which the Punjab has been favoured, that the Managing Committee have considered themselves justified in investing nearly the whole remainder of their available assets, and we understand that the sum of thirty-five thousand rupees is now on the way down to Calcutta for investment. The subjoined report is addressed to the officiating Secretary:—

Lahore, 7th April 1862.

SIR, In compliance with your letter of the 1st ultimo, desiring us at the request of the Central Committee to audit the accounts of the Punjab Famine Relief Fund, we have the honor to state that we have carefully examined the accounts up to the 20th February 1862, and have found that the balance of Rs. 3,49,424-5-3 (three lakhs of which is in Government paper shewn in the General Cash Account published in the Supplement to the Punjab Gazette of the 12th February 1862) is correct.

2. The amounts shewn in the official papers as "Subscriptions" and "Government equivalents" have been duly credited in the Committee's accounts, and the amounts sent from Lahore to the several district committees have been duly credited in the district cash accounts; with the exception of a sum of Rs. 6246-13-4, for which corresponding credit is not traceable in the Kurnal account, but receipt has been acknowledged by the Local Secretary.

3. The district accounts have shewn besides the remittance received from the Central Committee, sundry amounts received as "Local subscriptions" and "Government equivalents." The sums with the exception of Rs. 110-2-0 at Rohtuk which the Local Secretary states is irrecoverable, have, after deduction of petty sums for feeding the poor &c., been remitted to the [illegible]thorized by the Com[illegible]he district accounts, [illegible]s have been duly [illegible]aries. PUNJAUB.

WE learn from the Punjaub that a further extension of steam communication on the river Indus has lately taken place, and that that river is now opened up to Kala Baugh. Hopes are entertained that further attempts to extend the upward course of steamers plying upon the Indus will be made very shortly; the results of which are anticipated with much confidence. Other letters from the same quarter convey to us the unwelcome intelligence that the Murrees, on the Affghan frontier, are again manifesting an unquiet disposition, necessitating the initiation of measures to check promptly, and with decision, any attempts they may make to descend into the plains for the purpose of depredation and plunder. These we suppose are occurrences which we must look for periodically, until we can induce the turbulent spirits who inhabit those mountains, to turn their swordblades into ploughshares. The remoteness, however, of that contingency is such as to necessitate constant preparation for war, so long as the sword-blades retain their pristine form. At present, at any rate, a good Toledo or Damascus blade is of much higher value in the eyes of a Murree, than the more peaceful agricultural implement; nor do we see a prospect of any change taking place in their opinions on this head. We must, therefore, be at all times prepared to meet them with their own weapons, and try conclusions with them, until we have completely convinced them of the uselessness of their sword blades to provide them the necessaries of life. That this lesson will be taught them one day, who can doubt? We have in our own land seen equally turbulent tribes converted into peaceful and kindly neighbours; we may, therefore, entertain hopes of the same results with regard to the Murrees and other mountain-tribes on our Punjaub frontier.—Englishman, April 16.

BEYPOOR.

ARRIVED at Beypoor, the western terminus of 400 miles of iron road, one naturally enough expects to see a bustling port, a commodious harbour, a pier or wharf or some sign at any rate of what so much labor and cost has been directed to—but the only thing to be seen is the terminus. Having travelled along the back of the great land serpent, and followed all his coils for hundreds of miles, you come at length to his tail and find nothing beyond it; there it lies, on the Beypoor mud bank, still and motionless. The crowds of natives who have come down the line, gradually disappear. The Engine retires to her resting place for the night, the carriages, empty and deserted, stand cooling themselves in the moonlight after their compulsory journey, and rejoicing, as it were, in this quiet phase of their vis inertiæ. Where is the Hotel? Non est. Where is the Bungalow? Over the water. Where is Calicut? Seven miles off. Any coolies to be had? Perhaps one or two, but that doubtful, as it is a Moplah feast. What is to be done? The Bungalow is the only resource. The ferry must be crossed in a boat, and you must take your chance of a room or half a room as the case may be. This is not a pleasant prospect for Paterfamilias with a small tribe of hungry little stomachs, or indeed for any one else, and it would be well to run up a small hotel here as soon as possible.

Why Beypoor was fixed upon as the terminus of this great line, is a question which may puzzle the most acute reasoner. There is no trading port—a barrier reef of rocks effectually prevents access of large craft to the river, which is broad and deep and would be costly and difficult to bridge—and Calicut, the chief shipping port of Malabar is, as before said, seven miles off. There may be some very deep and far seeing policy at the bottom of this scheme, such for instance as that which carried the line four or five miles away from all the principal towns on the route—to the ordinary understanding however, such difficult theories are incomprehensible. If the shareholders of the Beypoor Ironworks and the Directors of the Madras Railway company had had anything, any interests in common, one might fancy the present terminus suggesting to their minds all that was eligible. How greatly the country would benefit by the facilities for getting such splendid iron! As the mighty Holloway says of his own pills, and ointment—all parties would be the better for getting them—but although the two offices were it is said, at one time under the same roof in London, it is impossible to suppose that great public interests were sacrificed to private ends; and we must content ourselves with the reflection that, like that of many other known facts both in nature and art, the cause of the Railway terminus being where it is, is as yet undiscovered. There are two important points now, with which it ought to be connected, namely Cochin and Calicut—the former a considerable mercantile port with good harbour and extensive trade—the latter a bustling thriving town having considerable trade with the Arab coast and daily growing in wealth and prosperity. It seems probable that both these places will soon be in direct communication with the rail and for all parties the sooner the better. The sudden change from the East to the West coast is surprising; the ardent heat of the Carnatic is no longer felt; the air is soft and a delightful sea breeze blows the greater part of the day; vegetation is luxuriant; those who have been in Ceylon or Burmah will fancy they are there again. The roads pass through groves of Cocoanut and Betel—the Banyan stretches wide its arms in perfect abandon. The pepper climbs on every tree—the huge talipot and the Sago palm are here, ginger, cardamoms arrow root reward the ryot's toil, rivers, canals, backwaters, mountain, wood and sea, such are the features of this teeming country, the change seems like magic. A few hours of sleep perchance, and you wake to a new world. A Company of the 66th Foot is stationed here and occupies the house where Conolly met his tragic end; some good buildings have been erected and the situation is very fine, overlooking the broad expanse of sea to the westward, the panorama of Wynaad with its undulating woods and the Neilgherry Mountains being spread out to the East. The men are said to be very healthy, and enjoy the place. In the jungles hard by the sportsman will find elephant, bison, tigers and sundry other feræ naturæ; the rivers are full of fish and alligators, and the sea daily yields whole ship loads of the finny tribe. Sardines are caught in myriads. Sharks give up their fins and livers in the politest way possible, the former for export to China and elsewhere—the latter to be drained of their medicinal oil, much of which probably finds its way to Dr. DeJonghi to be done brown, light or dark, secundum artem. The cattle on this coast are poor and small and sheep do not thrive. The Rail will no doubt soon set this matter right, and supply the Mops with mutton and beef to their heart's content. Ice also will of course come daily, and be found an indispensable luxury to the European community. In return the Aldermen of Madras may look out for turtle. From the coral reefs of the Laccadives just ninety miles off the coast, any quantity of marine reptile may be obtained on demand, and the Club dinners will soon be incomplete unless ushered in by a bowl of the real Maldivean islander. Rough as this coast is said to be, during the force of the South West monsoon, it is at other times free from surf. Massulah boats are not in existence, and the smallest canoe is launched with care and safety. There is little or no swell and it is usual to make long trips along the coast, in narrow canoes pulled by four oars, or propelled by a light sail, if the wind be favorable. Cocoanut oil is exported in large quantities, and also much used in native cookery apparently taking the place of ghee. Hemp is grown largely—Rice is imported, plantains and pine-apples are abundant, and jack-fruit meet the eye at every turn. The inhabitants of all classes have a sleek and contented look—they are very independent, and seem on capital terms with themselves—circumstances no doubt due to the great fertility and extensive occupation of the soil. They are said to be delighted with the railway—to be fully sensible of its advantages and prepared to make use of them. With a high assessment the returns from this District must be very large and might probably be extended indefinitely.

The Coffee interest is assuming very large proportions and the planters are becoming an important branch of the community. They have laid out and circulated vast sums of money in tracts of country which but a few years since brought absolutely nothing to the State—about 16 lakhs of Rs. have flowed from their purses through the districts of Malabar alone. In the process of transformation into coffee estates, which will no doubt prove highly remunerative in the end, this money has, like streams of water running to the sea, diffused happiness and prosperity in its course, and the civilizing influence of these enterprising men is not to be measured by the mere number of coffee bags which reach the shipping port. They perform a far higher function. They diffuse a spirit of progress, a desire for improvement and education and the means of securing them, a respect for earnest exertion and a conviction of the excellence and reality of European efforts. It is the best interest of Government to encourage these men by every proper means in their power, to help them with roads and bridges, to meet their reasonable requests in every possible way, and in so doing they will be sure to reap their own reward.

The Railway has now made all this coast very accessible. Steamers touch at Cochin, Calicut, Cannanore, Mangalore, &c. and if they keep their time regularly, which it is of course their object to do, a trip from Madras to any part of the Western coast may be calculated by hours and accomplished at a very resonable rate. The climate though not pungently hot is warm and depressing. Europeans appear to enjoy pretty good health but look waxy and languid and are disinclined to much bodily exertion. The native population seems generally healthy but are liable to severe outbreaks of cholera and small-pox. This latter scourge might be in a great measure prevented by a more carefully conducted system of vaccination. It is certainly astonishing that so simple a remedy is not more generally brought to bear in the prevention of so frightful a malady. The district Superintendents, removed on account of the exigencies of the mutiny, have never been replaced. The old system, which has long since proved insufficient and unreliable, still obtains, and the consequence is that hundreds and thousands of human being are annually brought to premature graves by this loathesome yet preventible disease. Jenner has for them lived in vain.

Any of your readers who are interested in the people of this coast and their habits and in the produce of the country will find an interesting account of them in a little book published by Mr. C. A. Lawson, entitled "British and Native Cochin." It is very pleasantly written and contains a great deal of information on many points.

"The friends of the London Missionary Society may be fairly congratulated on the wonderful popularity of Dr. Livingstone's work. It has conveyed ideas of our work amidst the heathen—of its civilizing results, and its spiritual successes—into quarters where the achievments of Evangelical enterprise had before been little known. That another work, by another of our missionaries, should issue from the press, within little more than twelve months afterwards, bidding fair to rival its predecessor in celebrity, is matter for even greater surprise, and still more grateful congratulation. Mr. Ellis is a brave, adventurous man."—Evangelical Magazine.

THE POETRY OF NATURE, illustrated by H. Weir. Rs. 9.

"In the Poetry of Nature, illustrated by Mr. Harrison Weir we have a title which tells little of the book itself, which is a curious one. The thing to be done was to spread a canvas exactly suited to Mr. Harrison Weir—an artist who, in our judgment, combines much of the excellences of Bewick and Landseer. We are not sure that he does not equal, if not excel, them in at least one particular. He is an animal draughtsman—by which we mean a draughtsman who thoroughly enters into the characters, and, if they possess them, the moral peculiarities, of his sitters or standers."—Saturday Review.

MESSRS. MACNEE & Co.

THIS Company has been projected to acquire and work important mineral and other rights in the district of Singhbhoom, on the South West frontier of Bengal and to purchase the existing buildings, machinery and plant already erected for the purpose of raising and smelting Copper ore.

These rights extend over an area of about eight hundred square miles, the mineral portion containing a belt of mountainous country 50 miles long by 16 broad and embrace all the old Copper Mines formerly superficially worked by natives as well as new ones lately opened up.

The principal site of the mines is between Badea and Jamjori, a distance of about thirty miles, lying N. W. and S. E., and situated on the western bank of the Soobunreeka. The whole chain of hills in this district (within 140 miles of Calcutta) abounds in copper ore, samples of which, and of copper plates smelted in India and in this country, can be seen at the Company's offices.

The Land in Singhbhoom is held under perpetual Leases granted by the Rajah of that District to the Vendor, and by him transferred to the Company, or by an underlease from the Vendor himself, at the Company's option. The Company have agreed to purchase the whole of the rights of the present owners, with the plant, machinery, &c., now on the Property, for the sum of £40,000, and a royalty of 2s. 6d. per ton on the ore sold, or £4 per ton on the copper smelted. The purchase money will be £10,000 in Cash, £10,000 in fully paid-up Shares, and £20,000 in shares or cash, at the option of the Company; the Directors having six months to declare their option. Possession of the Property has already been given, and there is a gentleman on the spot at the present time superintending the preparation of ore, fuel, &c. for commencing operations.

The Title Deeds of the Property have been duly examined by Solicitors of high standing in Calcutta, and declared perfectly in order.

The general features of this Copper Country are a number of small mountain ranges intersected by streams, and plains, spotted with small villages. A number of old native workings exist at the outcrops of the hills, but no deep shafts have yet been sunk to test the value of these deposits. The old working may be traced along the different ranges of hills to the extent, in length, of nearly 100 miles.

The Copper smelting works are situated in Dolbhoom about 30 miles East of Chaibussa, and from the town of Midnapore nearly due West about 65 miles. There is a range of hills, from 800 to 1000 feet above the plain, in the immediate vicinity, and the river Garuru forcing its way through these mountains discharges its waters into the Soobunreeka, only about 3 miles distant. The Garuru river contains water the whole year round, and near the works where the river passes through the range of mountains already mentioned, it forms a number of falls, thus affording an opportunity for applying the water power by means of wheels and turbines.

Two most competent Smelters have been sent out to the works with full instructions to commence smelting immediately. An experienced under ground Captain and a Mine Carpenter have also been sent out with orders to lose no time in getting the Mines, in Landoo and Jamjori, into an actively producing state. Those mines which were lately opened, gave ores averaging from 18 to 25 per cent. Full reports on the samples of ore assayed are given in the detailed Prospectus.

The cost of raising, smelting, and carriage to Calcutta, of Copper from the Mines is calculated at £38 to £40 per ton, and this allows a margin for contingent expenses.

The average percentage of profit for the first two or three years is reckoned at 15 to 20 per cent., but it is confidently expected that in a few years the dividend will reach a much higher figure.

Prospectuses and Forms of Application may be had by applying in Bombay, to
